TIDE IS TURNING TO LAW AND ORDER IN CALLOWAY CO.

Great Revival Has Stirred
Moral Sense of People and Aided Officials.

Incendiary Literature Has Been Disseminated.

MEN WHO ARE UNDER ARREST

(By Perry Melton.)

Murray, Ky., April 10.—The ability of the county officials to "show" the night riders and the world that they could and would put down lawlessness and that they have evidence in their possession that will fill the county jail with night riders and their instigators, caused almost an upheaval of public sentiment that had been tolerant of the methods used and marked the beginning of the end of the reign of lawlessness in some sections of the county.

Among the first to seek Judge Wells and congratulate him yesterday were several good citizens, who had been strongest in condemning him for bringing troops in the county.

Languihing in the county jail, their spirit of bravado gone, were seven wretched men, the first installment of a wholesale number that are alleged to have been connected with the whipping of Frank Mardis and A. H. Perry and the threatening of numerous good citizens. That the charge of banding together and whipping men, already a felony, would likely be increased to the more serious charge of murder was made evident when Mr. W. K. Russell, one of the most reliable men in the county, and a neighbor of Frank Mardis, reported to county officials yesterday that Mr. Mardis is in a serious condition as the result of the punishment meted out to him, and the chances are against his recovery. It is said that Mr. Mardis is not only a nervous wreck, but that he is suffering from internal injuries.

Of the first seven men arrested Jake Ellis, a blacksmith, who also raises tobacco, is charged with being an officer of rank in the night rider army, while Jack Elkins is more than a high private in the rear ranks. The bonds of both were fixed at $2,000 or $500 more than that of the others implicated.

A most pitiable spectacle is that of young Carlos Elkins, 18 years old, confined in the same cell and charged with the same crime, with Bob Duncan and Ed Thompson, men well advanced in life as evidenced by the gray hairs in their head. Thompson has served a term in the United States prison at Atlanta for counterfeiting, having been convicted and sentenced by the federal court at Paducah. Duncan was also implicated in the case, but was not convicted. The men passed bogus $20 bills, supposed to have been made by Boss Boatwright by a method of photography. Dumas Miller and Harden Lovett, the other two caught in the first drive, have families.

All admitted that they are tobacco growers and members of the association. Jake Ellis stated that he is a blacksmith, but also grows tobacco, and that it is in the association this year but not last. As far as learned all are "share croppers" with the possible exception of Ellis, who owns property.

Judge Wells stated yesterday that the men in jail are nothing to the number that could be under arrest in 24 hours, if necessary, but that his policy will be to make no arrests unless he has in his possession proofs that will insure conviction.

He stated that the presence of troops has been of inestimable value in the work of routing out the lawless element. Since their arrival good men have volunteered information that was of the utmost importance, but had been withheld through fear. One man yesterday came to town and gave a deposition said he had been ready to tell what he knew all the while, but that he wanted to know that he would be given protection and furthermore that he wanted to be convinced that the officers mean business and really want to know the true state of affairs in the county.

To Deputy Sheriff John Holland and his brother, former Sheriff Walter Holland, is due a large measure of the credit of securing evidence that resulted in the first arrests, but from the court of inquiry conducted by Judge Wells came the evidence so needful to corroborate evidence secured by the Hollands. Should the cases come to trial at the preliminary hearing tomorrow and the county officials be forced to show their hands,

True Democracy Outlined in His Speech at Shiloh Park by Governor J. A. Johnson, of Minn. Today

Power of Government Close to People Hall Mark—Progressing
Through the World—Unveiling of State Monument.

TEST OF DEMOCRACY.

The hallmark of Democracy is that the powers of government are close to the people. Throughout the world, wherever Democracy is advancing its progress is marked by a greater measure of self-government to each community.

JOHN A. JOHNSON.

Shiloh, Tenn., April 10.—A plea for state self-government and a protest against the Roosevelt idea of centralization was the keynote today of the first public address delivered by Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, since he came into the public eye as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president.

"The occasion was the dedication of the monument at Shiloh erected by the state of Minnesota in honor of the soldiers of the state who fell in battle there."

Tribute to the soldier dead was paid in graceful terms, and then, turning to what was developed as the text of address, Gov. Johnson said:

"In this hour, when there seems to be a disposition to depart from established forms, when there seems to be a desire upon the part of those in authority to abide in a central bureaucracy rather than in a representative Democracy—it becomes you and me to protest against any departure whatsoever from the government which came to us from the constitutional convention of 1787, and those amendments which have been made to it by the specific will of the people."

"While the primary object of a written constitution is to define governmental powers, and to limit governmental departments, the overwhelming necessity for such an instrument is to prevent insidious encroachments upon the rights of the individual citizen, both from those in office and from those who by reason of their wealth and power have no influence far greater than that possessed by the average citizen. And so the constitution of the United States was regarded by its framers as an instrument of the most sacred import, an alteration of which could only be made by the people themselves, in whom all ultimate power is vested, and then only after the fullest discussion and widest publicity.

"Under our system of government the nation has reached a material development hitherto unknown. But with the development of the country and changes in the economic conditions, and particularly with the growth of great private corporations, performing many of the functions of government, has come the necessity for the exercise of strict governmental control, and a rigid enforcement of all the laws enacted to restrain the rich and powerful from encroaching upon the natural and legal rights of the poor and weak."

"Our government is divided into three separate and distinct coordinate branches: the legislative, the executive and the judicial. Danger will surely come to this republic when any of these departments of government attempt in the slightest degree to usurp the functions of the other."

"Very recently there has come from the highest judicial tribunal in the land a decision of vital interest and concern to the American people, because it has established a principle, as stated by one member of the court, which 'would work a radical change in our governmental system and would inaugurate a new era in the American judicial system and in the relations of the national and state governments. It would enable the subordinate federal courts to supervise and control the official action of the states as though they were dependencies or provinces. It would place the states of the union in a condition of inferiority never dreamed of when the constitution was adopted or when the eleventh amendment was made a part of the supreme law of the land.'"

"If this is the result of this decision, it is, to my mind, one of the unhappiest incidents in the history of our republic, because the very theory of our government is based upon the right of the states to control absolutely their own domestic affairs."

"What this government needs is not more power. What it needs today is to so distribute the privileges under the government that all citizens will have equal opportunity. America has been called the land of opportunity. But American opportunity should not mean a granting of special privileges to any class, but should afford all alike the means of culture, education, prosperity and contentment."

ED R. MILLER WILL BE APPOINTED CITY BUYER BY MAYOR J. P. SMITH

Well Known Man Receives
Snug Position Because Mayor
Thinks He is Right Man
For The Place.

Ed R. Miller, local tobacco inspector, will be appointed city buyer by Mayor James P. Smith. Although the official announcement of the selection has not been promulgated, this tip is straight.

Mr. Miller is well known, and Mayor Smith believes him to be the available man, best suited in every respect for the duties of the office.

"I wanted a man of strict business integrity as well as intelligence for the place," said Mayor Smith. "I am harassed by innumerable little things, that the buyer can take off my hands, as well as attend to buying provisions for the departments. I need a man I can rely on, and while, of course, I shall not be blind to what is going on, I am choosing a man in whom I have the utmost confidence and I am certain that the city will save far more than the salary paid through the work of the man I shall appoint."

Mr. Miller was one of Mayor Smith's staunch political supporters. He is a Republican and well known politically. He was the choice of the Debowing of the party in the First district for state central committee man.

MEAT CLEAVER IS USED AS WEAPON IN HOTEL FIGHT

With a meat cleaver as a weapon, Jim Harris, a porter at the Craig hotel, made a murderous assault on Emmett Dobson, a dining room boy, early this morning and although he was badly used up, the places cut requiring several stitches, Dobson was able to walk down to police headquarters and give an account of the trouble. They quarreled over an umbrella belonging to one of the guests being stolen and the lie was passed. Harris went into the dining room and told the cook that Mrs. Craig sent him after the meat cleaver, and taking it back with him to the hall near the office, he struck Dobson a terrific blow on the head. Both were arrested, Harris being charged with assault with a deadly weapon and Dobson with breach of the peace.

HUNGRY BURGLARS TAKE WAGON LOAD OF SUPPLIES AWAY

Grocery Stores and Saloon Suffer
Depredations of Thieves in the Night Time.

In One Place Marauder Knew
Proprietor's Habit.

ST. BERNARD COAL OFFICE

Hungry burglars who were artists in selecting good things to eat undoubtedly composed the gang that visited Paducah groceries and saloons last night, the list of things stolen including ham, eggs, fruit, sugar, spices and relishes, as well as the staple articles of food such as meal, flour, bacon, with a case of matches to light the fires under the frying pans.

George Dipple's grocery, Seventh and Jackson streets, was entered and a wagon load of goods was stolen. Mr. Dipple is positive that two sacks of flour, a side of bacon, a ham, eight dozen eggs, a can of lard, a smash case of matches, a lot of sugar done up in packages ready for the trade, and some from the barrel, were stolen while the drawers and shelves were ransacked for money. The place was entered through the front door, the lock being picked off.

Saloon Robbed.

The saloon and store of Ramey & Jenkins, at Eighth and Harris streets, was also entered and several bottles of whiskey were stolen from the bar and some notions from the store. Mr. Jenkins believes that the men entering his place were familiar with the place, as there were evidences that a scratch had been made for a shot sack of money that was usually hid in the place at night. The drawer where it was usually kept was pulled out and the papers were scattered over the floor. Even a box of axle grease in the drawer was opened. This place was entered through the back window, a light being cut out and the bolt fastening the window, which swung on hinges, pushed back and the window opened. That the burglars were frightened away before they finished their job is evident by the fact that a money drawer under the bar, in which there was some money exposed to view, was pulled open but the money was not taken.

St. Bernard Office.

The office of the St. Bernard Coal company was entered also last night, but the window, through which entrance was gained, was too small for a man to have entered, and the belief is that this job was done by boys, though whether a confederate of the other burglars is not known. Only a few cents, some stamps and a pair of office scissors were stolen, but the file boxes and drawers of the office were all ransacked and the papers were scattered all over the floor when the bookkeeper entered the place this morning.

For Member of State Central Committee for First District.

Joe L. Price, circuit clerk of Marshall county, has been favorably spoken of for member of the state central committee for this district, and we feel sure no better man could be selected for this position. He is the present circuit clerk, and president of the Bank of Marshall county. He has a clean record as an official, as a business man and a Democrat. He commands the respect of people at home and everywhere he is known. He would reflect honor on the position and work for the interest of his party.—Fulton Democrat.

Joe Bell, Caught on Streets of Murray—Believed Commander Calloway County Night Riders

QUIET CONDITIONS
IN CALLOWAY CO.
AND MURRAY TODAY

Murray, Ky., April 10, 2 p. m.—

Officers who are reported to have gone out to round up more men charged with night riding, have not at this hour reported with arrests. The town is as it has been since the arrival of the soldiers here, absolutely quiet and there is not a semblance of truth in the report sent out to Cincinnati and Louisville papers from Paducah that 5,000 men or any part of that number were on the street last night threatening to force the release of prisoners.

The streets of Murray were almost deserted at 8 o'clock last night and not a half dozen farmers were in the city after dark.

A large crowd is expected tomorrow when the trials of the cases are called, but they will come through curiosity to see the men imprisoned and hear evidence against them.

The officers do not expect any attempt to be made to release them by force, but as the Calloway jail is of antiquated design, a small cordon of soldiers guard it.

A report is current that 25 or 30 men suspected of night riding have left the country, one man is known to have sold his stock and other property at a sacrifice and left.

COMMERCIAL CLUB WILL ENTERTAIN 800 TRAVELERS

The Commercial club will take up the consideration of arrangements in a few days for the annual convention of the Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi Traveling Men's association, which will convene here June 25 to 27. This meeting will be the largest of the character held in Paducah in several years, as there are over 800 members of the organization and most of the members bring their wives and other members of their families with them. This year they have invited the "Hustlers," the Southern Illinois and Southeast Missouri association to meet with them and it is thought they will do so.

"A meeting like this will advertise Paducah more than any other thing I know of just now," said Secretary Fowler of the Commercial club, today. "Eight hundred traveling men, going all over the south, if they are favorably impressed, as they are sure to be with Paducah, will give us more publicity than $10,000 spent in circulars and other printed matter. The club is aware of this fact, so will make every effort to make this meeting the most successful of a season."

THIRD OFFENSE BUT HE ESCAPED A LIFE SENTENCE

The failure of the commonwealth's attorney to learn in time to incorporate in the indictment, the fact that Luntz Hill, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny in circuit court this morning, had been convicted of felony on two other cases and served his sentence, prevented his getting a life sentence this morning, and as it was he was given five years, the limit on a grand larceny charge, for stealing a pistol, shotgun and other articles from Jesse Well. The case is one of the few on record in McCracken county, where a prisoner pleaded guilty and was given the limit. Commonwealth's Attorney Lovett made a speech in the case explaining the character of the man.

Other Cases.
Taylor Pryor, colored, charged with selling whisky on Sunday was fined $25 and costs.
Lon Gilbert, dismissed.

MURDER TAIN'T IS WIPED OUT

Dismisses Indictment Made
26 Years Ago.

Has New Name and Has Risen to
Head of a Great Mercantile Establishment.

IN SOME FAR WESTERN CITY

Kingston, N. Y., April 10.—In some western city, the name of which is scrupulously guarded, lives a prominent and respected citizen from whom the supreme court of New York has removed the stigma of indictment which was returned 26 years ago and charged John Taylor with the death of Thomas Murray.

The present home of Taylor and the name under which he has since lived married and risen to the head of a big mercantile establishment are known to but three men here and his secret will be kept.

Taylor's identity was made known by him to the court after a search for him, which covered two continents and took several years, had been abandoned.

Throwing himself upon the mercy of the prosecutor, Taylor invited inquiry into his life for the past quarter of a century. This proved so satisfactory that former Supreme Court Justice Clearwater, who, as district attorney, obtained an indictment against Taylor, declared it would be a gross injustice to reveal the man's new name.

Today Justice Howard sitting in the supreme court dismissed the indictment. Murray was killed at Port Ewen, Ulster county, on election day when there had been a riot at polls. They had been unfriendly and during the riot Murray's head was cracked by a brick. He died a few days later, and Taylor fled.

TALK OF WAR

ARMY AND NAVY PREPARING FOR MOBILIZATION.

Castro May Be Given Sound Object
Lesson for the Future—
Before Long.

Chicago, April 10.—A dispatch from Washington, D. C., says:

Plans are being elaborated in detail for the mobilization of a joint military and naval force in Venezuela as soon as possible after President Roosevelt obtains congressional sanction to resort to force against Castro.

It may not be deemed necessary by the administration to make this martial demonstration, but the war and navy departments are both mapping out a tentative military movement.

The whole military situation is now under consideration by the general staff of the army and the general board of the navy by a direct order from the president upon Secretary Root's recommendation for preparedness to back up eventualities with a show of arms.

President Roosevelt cannot constitutionally declare war against Venezuela. Legislative authority would be required for such a campaign, and the present preparation of plans, it is understood, will be merely in accord with the policy of mapping out campaigns for possible emergencies.

Directions given in the present instance are, however, the most explicit made since the army and navy was ordered to prepare for participation in the international relief column against Peking during the Boxer troubles. They are being guarded closely and transmitted verbally from bureau to bureau.

"When the defendant told you to go to the devil, what did you then do?"

IN KENTUCKY

NATIONAL BAPTIST CONVENTION
TO BE HELD.

Lexington Secures Big Meeting—
Will Not Alter Plans for

Nashville, Tenn., April 10.—"The change of the meeting place of the 1908 session of the National Baptist convention from New York to the beautiful, proud, historic and wealthy city of Lexington, Ky., was made March 26 by the executive boards in session in this city. The change will not interfere in the least with the date, the time, the place or the extensive program for the coming session of the National Baptist Sunday School Congress and Young People's Chautauque, which is to be held in Jacksonville, Fla., at Bethel Institutional church, beginning Wednesday morning, June 24, and continuing until Monday, June 29," said Mr. Henry Allen Boyd, secretary of the Sunday school congress movement, in speaking to the Courier-Journal correspondent about the action of the executive boards. It was also learned from him that the work of preparing the list of subjects to be discussed at the congress is being rapidly pushed and that they would be announced through the columns of the National Baptist Union, the official organ of the National Baptist convention, at an early date. Although the programme is in its embryonic state, it was learned that many prominent men have consented to speak. "Among them," states Mr. Boyd, "will be found the following: The Rev. W. B. Reed, pastor of the First Baptist church, Madison, N. J.; Mr. Hugh T. Musselman (white), superintendent Sunday School training department American Baptist Publication society, Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. A. A. Cooley, Mound Bayou, Miss.; the Rev. N. D. Broughton (white), superintendent Sunday school pedagogy, Southern Baptist Sunday school board, Raleigh, N. C.; and Lieut. Col. Allen A. Alenworth, United States army (retired), of Los Angeles, Cal. These are but a few of the many prominent men who have expressed their intentions to be present."

TURNIP WHISKEY.
"Try this, mon," said the Scotch host, pouring an inch or two of whiskey from a jug.
The guest tried it, reddened, coughed, choked.
"Gee," he said, as the other poured

"Awell, mon, tell's what ye think o' it."

"It warms me," said the guest. "It warms and thrills me. But is it not a little rough, a little hot? It went down, I confess, like a torch-light procession or a string of chestnut buns."

The Scotchman laughed contemptuously.
"Ye've got no throat," he said. "Ye'll ne'er make a whiskey drinker. Losh, mon, that is the purest an' most potent spirit ever passed yer lip—an' ye choked on it. It is pure turnip spirit made on ma brither's farm at Craigenputtock."

"Made out of turnips, hey?"
"To be sure. All over bonny Scotia they mak' whiskey out o' turnips. They're thrifty there. Nought goes to waste. Here's to ye, mon."

Aldermen Concur in Action of the Lower Board.

No Franchise Will Be Offered the East Tennessee Telephone Company By City.

BUSINESS OF UPPER BOARD.

Aldermen last night declined to concur in the resolution of the councilmen to offer a franchise to the East Tennessee Telephone company and are standing pat on their suit and the boycott of the company's service.

The action of the councilmen, providing the office of city buyer, to be appointed by the mayor and receive a salary of $100 the month, was concurred in.

The resolution authorizing the city milk and meat inspector exclusively to inspect cattle for tuberculosis, was defeated.

Copies of the ordinance regulating hack hire, were ordered prepared for each member.

Franchises were asked for by the Paducah & Northern and the Paducah and Cairo Interurban lines, and the requests were referred to the ordinance committee.

The matter of regulating the location of the coal fleet at the foot of Washington street was referred to a committee.

The matter of rewiring the public library was referred.

Reports were filed and $75 paid by Jordan & Sons, moving picture showmen, for a license never used was returned.

O. E. Potter was granted a license to open a saloon at 737 North Seventh street.

Installation house men failed to get a reduction in license from $50 to $10. No action was taken on a similar request of second-hand dealers. The request of Thomas C. Leech investment company, for a refund of $75, was referred to the city solicitor.

Mayor Smith was directed to renew the contract for caring for sick seamen at $1.35 for ordinary cases at Riverside hospital and $2.50 for contagious diseases.

An ordinance for concrete sidewalks on North Fifteenth street between Clay and Trimble streets, was ordered brought in.

Second readings were given to ordinances, providing for sidewalks on Water street between Broadway and Kentucky avenue; reducing cigar makers' license from $35 to $10 and providing protection for spectators at moving picture shows.

A BOOTLEGGERS' TRUST.

Negroes Form Combination to Rob
Liquor Dealers.

Huntingdon, Tenn., April 10.—A well known Nashville liquor firm would like very much to get hold of a coterie of Huntingdon darkeys who have been working a skin game on them. It appears that several negroes of this city have formed a bootlegging trust and have undertaken to do business without capital, and not altogether without success, as the Nashville firm is out about $35 worth of whisky. The negroes would order a supply of liquor and send a check for payment of same. The checks were signed by the same negro each time. When the checks were returned to the Huntingdon banks it was found that the party had no money in the institutions. A constable now has the account, and the leader of the "trust" was in custody yesterday, endeavoring to raise the amount due the Nashville firm. Bootleggers have become quite active in this city of late, and a number of them are under surveillance.

Forty Day Fast to Prove His Theory Causes Death of Knute Alstead

St. Paul, April 10.—Knute Olstead died at the home of David Plotny, 195 Grove street, of starvation. At the time of his death Olstead was within twenty-four hours of completing a forty-day fast, which he had undertaken in order to demonstrate to his own satisfaction that the mind controls the body and that mind is superior to matter.

Mr. Plotny, whom Olstead told of his fast only a few days ago, went to Olstead's room and found him in an extremely weakened condition. Officer Gavin was called and sent for the city physician. Olstead died a few minutes later.

Spends Time Writing.
Olstead rented a room in the Plotny home three months ago. He told little about himself and spent most of his time in his room writing.

Three days ago Mr. Plotny, seeing Olstead leaving the house about meal time, noticed him stagger. Plotny spoke to him and asked him if he was ill. Olstead replied that he was not and said that he was fasting in order to prove that the mind was not controlled by matter. Plotny notified Patrolman Gavin, and together they went back to see Olstead. Olstead firmly refused to see a physician and declared he would take no medicines if they were prescribed. Before the officer left Olstead wrote on the back of an envelope: "My sister's address is R. F. D. No. 2, Rio, Wis.," and gave it to him.

An examination of Olstead's effects found a heavy chest nearly filled with manuscript written in Norwegian on "New Thought."

Makes Record of Fast.
Olstead left a vest pocket diary which contained brief notations of his actions during his fast. Those referring to his diet were as follows:

"Ate my last meal Friday evening, February 28."
"March 15—Ate some peppermint today."
"March 19—Twenty days tonight since I ate."
"March 20—Ate peppermint today."
"March 23—Ate candy today."
"March 26—Ate maple sugar tonight."
"March 26—Ate candy and little peanuts today."
"March 31—Ate candy today and little peanuts."
"April 3—Ate a little candy today."

"April 8—Will be forty days tonight since I quit eating."
The only other entries during that period were two stating that he had paid his room rent, and one making note of the Hackenschmidt-Gotch wrestling match last Friday.

Coroner Miller put it down as a case of suicide and noted the primary cause of death as "occult science, and the immediate cause, starvation."

Olstead had a philosophic trend of mind, and his writings show that he was soliloquizing on life and eternity.

JUDGE WELLS.

Judge A. J. G. Wells, familiarly known to every inhabitant of Calloway county as "G. Wells," was born and reared on a Calloway county farm. He is what is known as a "self-made man." His early education and training were secured under great difficulties. His parents were poor. After acquiring a common school education he taught in the county schools. He entered the Huntington, Tenn., university as a student, paying part of his tuition in labor. After taking a course in the university he became a teacher and gradually worked his way up until he was made vice-president of the school, and when he resigned to take up the practice of law in his home county he refused the presidency of the university at a handsome salary. Judge Wells entered the race for county judge of Calloway county two years ago reluctantly, yielding to friends who knew him to be the only man who could take the lead and rout out a crowd in control of county affairs. Since his election to the county judge's bench he has been put to tests that have shown his true mettle. The fiscal court retiring as he went into office reduced the salary of his office to $300 a year, which cannot be changed during his present term of office; but he held out in face of the fact that there is not a living in the office for him and he has succeeded in making an enviable record as county judge.

STOCKS SLUMPED.

A Chicago stock broker committed suicide when the market went against him. He killed himself because his life was a failure. His life was a failure, not because stocks slumped and he lost his wealth; but because he made the mistake of devoting his life to the accumulation of money. Money is a good servant, but a terrible master. If that broker had known some interest, other than the selfish lust that ruled him, when the market slumped he would have not been keen. It would not have torn from him his only object in life. He would have had something left for which to live. Stocks slumped—there ever a life in which at some time or other stocks do not slump; everything goes against the life; when the world seems to spin around, out of gear, unchecked while the poor, helpless humanity stands still in a dead calm of eternal woe?

Stocks slump, but stocks go up again; and what's the odds? People die, too. Stocks have been vacillating and people have been dying ever since the world began, and yet that Chicago stock broker thought no one else ever had such woe as his. Stocks may have slumped before and recovered, but they never took all his money when they slumped, and that was all the Chicago broker was interested in—his own stocks.

It may surprise him, too, if he can understand, that the world isn't interested in the fact that those stocks slumped, except as the slump throws light on the reason why he killed himself.

There are other who will read of his death, and the only moral they will draw will be the foolishness of the broker getting caught on the wrong side of the market. And so it goes: All stock will slump and some men will kill themselves, so long as the world lasts. Selfishness can ever be depended on to cut its own throat.

IN MEXICO

PADUCAH COMPANY IS DOING THE LEADING BUSINESS.

Foreign Gold Being Brought Into This City and Trade Is Increasing Constantly.

Mr. H. R. Lindsey, general manager of the Sutherland Medicine company, and president of the board of councilmen, who has just returned from a trip to Mexico, on a visit to the branch of the medicine company at Monterey, is enthusiastic over that country and the business his company is doing down there, and brought back substantial evidence of the success the company's product have achieved.

"Mexico is a great country in which to do business, and already our medicines are the best sellers in their lines in the country, although we have been there but fifteen months," he said today. "We are carrying the name of Paducah into every town and city and rural district of the Mexico government, and it is gratifying to note with what success."

While Mr. Lindsey did not give out for publication the volume of business the company is doing in Mexico, it is known that it is considerable, and it is the source of great gratitude to him to feel that the company in these times of financial stress in our own country, is bringing foreign money into the city.

"I am more and more impressed, on each visit, with the government of Mexico and its cities," he said, speaking of the national and municipal affairs. "The cities are building sewers, water systems and handsome streets, and the buildings that would do credit to any American city, and their work seems only just begun. The streets are very clean, and are kept so at little expense. They are swept by hand, old men being employed for the service, at a cost of fifty cents a day, and as a result they are cleaner than an average American city."

GOULD ASKS DE SAGAN'S RECORD OF PARIS POLICE.

New York, April 10.—It became known today that George J. Gould has applied to the chief of police of Paris for the record of Prince Helle de Sagan. This move on the part of the head of the Gould family followed the positive announcement that Mme. Anna Gould is not engaged to marry the prince. The French constabulary has on file the complete life history of every one within its jurisdiction.

Prince Helle spent practically this afternoon and evening with Mme. Gould. When told of George Gould's latest move against him, the prince only laughed. "George Gould may do as he pleases," he said. "Look as he will for anything in my past, he will find nothing serious. I am quite at ease as to anything George Gould may bring against me. He can be as aggressive as he chooses. His aggression will not affect me in the slightest."

MAKING TOUR OF WORLD.

Party of Sixty Japanese Reach Chicago.

Chicago, April 10.—Sixty Japanese merchants, bankers and government officials, who are making a tour of the world, arrived in Chicago last night. The party left Cedar Rapids and stopped at Dixon and DeKalb, Ill., today, where they visited factories and business establishments.

They were met at Clinton, Iowa, by a delegation of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who will attend the visitors during their two days' stay in Chicago. They will visit New York and Washington before sailing for Liverpool.

Rates to Conventions.

Chicago, April 10.—The central passenger association today recommended to the officials of the eastern railroads that the rate of one fare and a half be made during the summer to all conventions where the attendance will exceed 1,000 persons. A special session of the association will be called next week at which time final action will be taken.

CHAPTER XVI.

So there I was at once deprived of my chief support. Although no danger seemed imminent, nevertheless the necessity of acting on my own initiative and responsibility oppressed me somewhat. Truth to tell, after the first I was more relieved than dismayed at the captain's resolution to stay aboard. His drinking habit was growing on him, and about as shrewd he was now little more than a figurehead, so that my chief asset as far as he was concerned was rather his reputation than his direct influence. In contact with the men I dreaded lest sooner or later he do something to lessen or destroy the awe in which they held him.

Of course Dr. Schermerhorn had been mistaken in his man. A real captain of men would have risen to circumstances wherever he found them. But who could have foretold? Captain Selover had been a rascal always, but a successful and courageous rascal. He had run desperate chances, dominated desperate crews. Who could know that a crumble of island beach and six months ashore would turn him into what he had become? Yet I believe such cases are not uncommon in other walks of life. A man and his work combine to mean something, yet both may be absolutely useless when separated. It was the weak link.

I put in some time praying earnestly that the eyes of the crew might be blinded and that the doctor would finish his experiments before the calendar could roll up again.

My first act as real commander was to announce holiday. My idea was that the island would keep the men busy for awhile. Then I would assign them more work to do. They proposed at once a tour into the interior.

We started up the west coast. After three or four miles along a mesa formation where often we had to circle long detours to avoid the gullies we came upon another short beach and beyond it a series of ledges on which basked several hundred seals. They did not seem alarmed, in fact one old bull, scarred by many battles, made toward us.

We left him, scaled the cliff and turned up a broad, pleasant valley toward the interior. "There the later lava flow had been deflected. All that showed of the original eruption were occasional red tuffaceous rocks. Soil and grass had overgrown the mineral. Scattered trees were planted throughout the flat. Aet and semitropical bushes mingled with brush on the rounded side hills. A number of brilliant birds fluttered at our approach."

Suddenly Handy Solomon, who was in advance, stopped and pointed to the crest of the hill. A file of animals moved along the sky line.

"Mutton," said he, "or the devil's a preacher!"

"Sheep," cried Thrackles. "Where did they come from?"

"Golden Horn," I suggested. "Remember that wide, empty deck forward? They carried sheep there."

The men separated, intending fresh meat. The affair was ridiculous. These sheep had become wild as deer. Our surrounding party with its silly, barred knives could only look after them open mouthed as they skipped nimbly between its members.

"Get a gun off the old man, Mr. Eagen," suggested Pulz, "and we'll have something besides salt horse and fish."

I nodded.

We continued. The island was like this as far as we went. When we climbed a ridge we found ourselves looking down on a spider web of other valleys and canyons of the same nature, all diverging to broad downs and a jump into the sea, all converging to the outworks that guarded the volcano with its canopy of vapor.

On our way home we cut across the higher country and the heads of the canyons until we found ourselves looking down on the valley and Dr. Schermerhorn's camp. The steam from the volcanic blowholes swayed below us. Through its rifts we saw the tops of the buildings. Presently we made out Percy Darrow, dressed in overalls, his sleeves rolled back and carrying a report. He walked, very preoccupied, to one of the miniature craters, where he knelt and went through some operation indistinguishable at the distance. I looked around to see my companions staring at him fascinated, their necks craned out, their bodies drawn back into hiding. In a moment he had finished and carried the report carefully into the laboratory. The men sighed and stood erect, once more themselves. As we turned away Perdosa's voice what must have been in the minds of all.

"A man could climb down there," said he.

"Why should he want to?" I demanded sharply.

"Quien sabe?" shrugged he.

We turned in silence toward the beach. Each brooded his thoughts. The sight of that man dressed in overalls, carrying on some mysterious business, brought home to each of us the fact that our expedition had an object as yet unknown to us. The thought had of late dropped into the background. For my part I had been so immersed in the adventure and the labor and the insistent need of the hour that I had forgotten why I had come. Dr. Schermerhorn's purpose was as inscrutable to me as at first. What had I accomplished?

The men, too, seemed struck with some such idea. There were no yarns about the empire that night. Percy Darrow did not appear, for which I was sincerely sorry. His presence might have created a diversion. For some unknown reason all my old apprehensions, my sense of impending disaster, had returned to me strengthened. In the firelight the nigger's sullen face looked sinister. Pulz's nervous white countenance looked vicious. Thrackles' heavy, bulldog expression was threatening. Perdosa's Mexican cast fit for knife work in the back. And Handy Solomon, stretched out, leaning on his elbow, with his red headgear, his snaky hair, his hook nose, his restless eye and his glittering steel claw—the glow wrote across his aura the names of Kidd, Morgan, Blackbeard.

They sat smoking, staring into the fire with mesmerized eyes. The silence got on my nerves. I arose impatiently and walked down the pale beach, where the stars glimmered in splashes along the wettest sand. The black silhouette of the hills against the dark blue of the night sky, the white of breakers at the foot of the distant heave of the ocean, a faint light marking the position of the Laughing Lass—that was everything in the world. I made out some object rolled about in the edge of the wash. A the cost of wet feet I rescued it. It was an empty brandy bottle.

River men should like for the interstate commerce commission to squeeze the water out of the waterways just now, as they are threatening damage for the third time this year. We had a rainfall of one inch here last night, and if it was general more water is expected. The gauge today registered 38.5, which is a rise of 1.1. From February 23 to the 27th the gauge was over 40 feet and again from March 17 to 20, and it may reach that mark again. A year ago today it was only 19 feet.

Named on 38th Ballot.

Shelbyville, Ind., April 10.—The sixth district Republican congressional convention nominated W. O. Barnard, of New Cassie, on the 38th ballot. Barnard is nominated to succeed Representative James E. Watson, who recently was nominated for governor by the Republicans.

Among the other innovations, regarding travel on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, is that passengers boarding the train at stations, where tickets are sold, must be provided with tickets. So closely is the rule being adhered to that trains are held to give those who board trains without tickets, a chance to purchase them. Traveling men with mileage other than their regular issue must also exchange the script for tickets.

New York, April 10.—Disclosure was made in this city that Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Pinney Earle have been divorced by the courts of France and that Mr. Earle has been married in Italy to Miss Julia Kuttner, whom he often described as his "soul mate." It was said the artist will not return to his country place, Quaker Hill, in Monroe, where he was attacked by a mob last September.

DIDN'T KNOW

That Coffee Was Causing Her Trouble

So common is the use of coffee as a beverage, many do not know that it is the cause of many obscure ailments which are often attributed to other things.

The easiest way to find out for oneself is to quit the coffee for a while at least, and note results. A Virginia lady found out in this way, and also learned of a new beverage that is wholesome as well as pleasant to drink. She writes:

"I am 40 years old and all my life up to a year and a half ago, I had been a coffee drinker. About ten years ago, I had dyspepsia so bad that often the coffee I drank would sour on my stomach and I could not retain it.

"Severe headaches and heart weakness made me feel sometimes as though I were about to die. After drinking a cup or two of hot coffee, not knowing it was harmful, my heart would go like a clock without a pendulum. At other times it would almost stop and I was so nervous I did not like to be alone.

If I took a walk for exercise, as soon as I was out of sight of the house I'd feel as if I was sinking and this would frighten me terribly. My limbs would utterly refuse to support me, and the pity of it all was, I did not know that coffee was causing the trouble.

"Reading in the newspapers that many persons were relieved of such ailments by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum, I got my husband to bring home a package. We made it according to directions and I liked the first cup. It's rich snappy flavor was delicious.

"I have been using Postum about eighteen months and to my great joy, I mention is good, my nerves and heart are all right, in fact, I am a well woman once more, thanks to Postum."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

SENATE PASSES LIABILITY BILL

Goes Through Without Any Amendment.

Employee Can Recover Even Though Injured Through His Own or Fellow Employee's Negligence.

JUST AS IT PASSED HOUSE

Washington, April 10.—The bill relating to the liability of common carriers by railroads passed by the house April 6, was passed by the senate without amendment and without a division.

As passed, the bill is expected to meet the objections of the United States supreme court to the common carrier liability law of 1896, decided to be unconstitutional by the court. The bill abolishes the strict common law liability which bars the recovery for personal injury or death of an employee, occasioned by the negligence of a fellow servant. It also relaxes the common law rule, which makes contributory negligence a defense to claims for such injuries, and permits the employee to recover for injury caused by the negligence of a co-employee. The bill does not bar recovery, even though the injured one contributed by his own negligence to the injury. The amount of recovery is diminished in the same degree that the negligence of the injured one contributed to the injury.

Some Exhibits.

Murray, Ky., April 10. — Among the many interesting exhibits that are on file in Judge Wells' office to be used as evidence in the prosecution against night riders is a black hood and the white scarf insignia worn by night riders.

In order that the little crowd in his office could see what a change in the appearance of a man could be wrought he placed the black hood or cowl on the head of the reporter for The Sun, and he was transformed into a hideous vision that would be greatly magnified in the moonlight or in the dim light that a faithful wife would place in the window to guide her husband safely away from her side by night riders.

The hood is made of a black stocking with holes cut for the eyes, nose and mouth. The scarf is the customary one of white domestic thrown across the shoulders of the private and double crossed on the breast of an officer.

Judge Wells was silent on the question as to where the things were captured, but it is believed to have been on the occasion when the Hollands chased a band on their way to a raid, which they succeeded in preventing that night but was pulled off later.

Judge Wells' life was twice threatened yesterday, through friendly courtesies, and he received one note from Hiram, in Liberty precinct, one of those designated by the judge as the hot bed of night riding, which said:

"Judge A. J. G. Wells inclose you will please find print read and think what liberty price done for you 4 year ago. Yours."

Accompanying the note was a copy of "Up To Date Farming," which is a single sheet printed on one side and purporting to be published at Indianapolis "twice a month." This issue is dated April 1 and says at the top of the front page, "Representing the Union or Co-operating Farmers of America."

The principal article is devoted to an alleged quotation from "The By-stander," a Los Angeles, Cal., advocating night riding. In recommendation of the article the "Up To Date Farming" says: "The greatest advances the human race has ever made have been in defiance of law and the present order of things. There is a limit to human endurance and when that limit is passed the most law-abiding may become lawless. It is incomprehensible that any farmers could be induced to stand out against their own class and themselves, but they will do so, and if laws are broken such persons must bear the responsibility. Had there been no tories in America at the time of the revolution the minions of King George could never have found a footing on our shore."

The alleged quotation from "The By-stander," which follows, is so apparently in the same vein, couched in the same language and followed out in the same style, that it leads to the conclusion that the same person wrote the editorials in the "Up To Date Farming."

IT IS A FACT.

(Buffalo, N. Y., Times.)

In view of the general belief in the incurability of chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes, we were asked to send a representative to interview three parties in this city, two of whom have recovered and the third is getting well.

A member of our staff went to one of the parties on Jefferson street to investigate. He is a business man. He gave the reporters the following facts: He had a friend who was so far gone with Diabetes that he could hardly move. Later he was astonished to see him back again at his employment. Meanwhile his wife developed the same disease. Later she was again about her daily occupations.

The business man in question was intensely interested, as he was a great sufferer himself from Diabetes. He learned how their recoveries had been effected, and procured the treatment for himself, with the result that he has resumed the personal care of his business.

It so happens that the member of the Times staff who verified these facts also knows of another case in this city that is yielding to the same treatment. That chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes, deemed fatal the world over, are now curable is being established here as well as in California.—Buffalo Times.

I sent for this treatment in the interest of the people here. If those interested in the curability of Bright's Disease and Diabetes will call I will give them full information.—W. B. McPherson, Paducah, Ky.

Farming" and the "By-stander," especially since a newspaper directory does not give the "By-stander" in a list of Los Angeles publications.

However, that may be, "The By-stander" says in one place:

"The trust bought the holdings of weak and disloyal men, who had placed their tobacco in the farmers' pool. Immediately the night riders began to terrorize the country. The barns of these dumper growers, packed like swine with will, were burned by members of the association. They had tried the court for justice. They couldn't get it there. And now they tried the torch, and when the forked flames of the contraband warehouses shot upward the black skies of night they struck terror to the ardent knaves."

"And these night riders are not without precedent—a precedent that stirs to tingling every drop of patriotic blood in the land. Up in Boston town in the good year 1773 there was organized a similar band. A party of quiet men went aboard the ships of one George — and did to his tea what Kentuckians are doing to the tobacco of the trust. The fruit of that masked Boston mob is the American Republic."

There is a great deal more of this sort of thing, and it evidently has been well disseminated throughout the Black Patch.

Judge Wells has received letters from Christian county pathetically thanking him for the initiative against lawlessness.

Judge Wells. The only indication that the night riders are still in existence in Calloway county is the repeated threats that are being made against the life of Judge Wells for his activity in running down the criminals. Yesterday he received information from two different sources and sections that threats had been made that day at most openly.

Notwithstanding those threats Judge Wells is calmly pursuing his course, but those who know him best are confident that when an attack is made he will sell his life dearly, for the world fear is not in his vocabulary.

To a close friend yesterday he stated that he would never be whipped. The devoted wife of Judge Wells gives him inspiration to fight his battle against outlaws and their sympathizers. Mrs. Wells was in his office when the judge was interviewed yesterday and though there was not a tremor on her face when she heard the latest reports of threats against her husband, it could be seen that she suffered beyond degree through anxiety for her husband.

Soles in the Road.
F. F. Acree is retained to defend the men arrested, and he said he will counsel moderation on the part of his clients and their sympathizers. All the prisoners said they would establish alibis, and it is now believed they will stand preliminary examination to force the state to show its hand.

It is authentically reported that a spy participated in the whipping of Frank Mardis, and for this reason the authorities have absolute proof in the case, with the corroborative evidence for which they have been waiting. These will be tests cases, and the real people Judge Wells is after will be in the toils before long.

A raid in the Kirksey section is to be the next subject of the soldiers' attention. Evidence is at hand to establish the identity of men engaged in those affairs.

It is said the same men who whipped Mardis, whipped Al Perry, although Perry and Mardis live miles apart.

A Great Revival.

Murray, Ky., April 10. — Murray and Calloway county not only claims the credit of having the only county officers in the state that have accomplished anything towards the silencing of night riders and klu klux klans without the aid so far of grand juries or circuit court officials, but the town and county is today proud of a revival meeting conducted by a brave and able minister, who for one service at least stepped aside from the usual order of things and called on the law-abiding citizens to lend a hand in suppressing violence. That it was effective was shown when at the conclusion of the discourse every man in the house went forward and put his name to the resolutions adopted and the meeting closed in a good old-fashioned Methodist love feast.

The time, the moment, was most propitious, for scarcely had the worshippers received the benediction and passed out into the streets to their places of business, which had been closed, than their attention was attracted to a body of horsemen coming into the city, the soldiers with seven alleged night riders. Then every one realized that the crisis had been reached and that good men and true were needed in the vanguard.

The spacious new Methodist church was crowded to its capacity, every aisle and pew being filled when the Rev. G. W. Klein, the Memphis conference missionary evangelist, who is conducting the meeting, began his sermon, the real import of which was not known until the last few minutes of his address, which will be remembered as long as the present generation in Murray and Calloway county exists.

In tones not uncertain and ringing with truth and righteousness he called out for sinners to go forward to the altar, but good citizens to take the stand in the open for right against lawlessness and crime. When he exhibited and read a set of resolutions now pressed forward to be the first to sign, and the six copies of the resolutions were not sufficient to accommodate the names.

Mr. Klein took for his subject "Man," and his discourse was from an ext found in Philomont 3, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." He began his talk by depicting the primitive conditions, when man was a barbarous state, drawing a distinction between man and the lower animals. He showed man's nature, his temper, prejudices, emotions and passions in the early stages, and then coming down to the time of Christ, he government when Rome ruled by force, the awful depravity of society and the passions of men, and then he change that came with Christ, who came to give peace to the world. Here the minister took up present conditions and began:

"Examine yourselves; are you living under primitive conditions or under the gracious enlightened age of Jesus Christ?"

"I wish I had the power of an angel, to give a trumpet sound from the highest pinnacle that the message would reach every inflamed, misguided, poisoned mind and heart and set it right."

"Hear Me, My Fellow Countrymen: Strife produces strife, lawlessness produces lawlessness; insurrection—rebellion—produces insurrection and rebellion. Work in the dark produces gloom, and night riding policies produces night riding principles, and all trace man back in the primitive state of low moral sense when men, deal and murder and not think, back to the law of the jungle, where brute force rules. Remember the most cohesive families won out, and from family ties government sprang."

"Again night riders produce the light riders and under its cloak they would wreak violence for personal grievances until the shoulders of night riders would not be broad enough to

Heart
Troubles

The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. It often happens that a person is born with a weak heart. Then again disease, fevers, over-exertion, anxiety, nervousness, rheumatism, etc. weaken the heart. The result is shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in the heart, or in some of the nerves of the chest or abdomen. The heart should be strengthened with a tonic, and for this nothing equals Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I had LaGrippe last fall as I thought in a mild form. I was weak, tired feeling, and short of breath; could hardly go about, and a good deal of the time sort of an asthmatic breathing, and extremely nervous. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine and now I feel so much better in every way. I am so thankful that I began taking this medicine, and shall not hesitate to tell others how much good it has done me."

bear all the crimes committed in that name.

"I am not here to call in question the object they wish to obtain. But you cannot afford to inaugurate or countenance a policy advocating lawlessness and maliciousness and the laying of violent hands on person or property."

"Two wrongs never make a right. You be true, loyal citizens; let who will be violators of the law."

"You recognize your fellow man's rights, let who will oppose."

At the conclusion of the sermon he exhibited a newspaper picture of the children of Hiram Hedges, who was assassinated while standing in the door of his humble home in Nicholas county. In a beautiful appeal he brought the occurrence home to every man present. "Who would care for your widow and orphans should the same calamity come to them?" he asked. "A continuation of the reign of lawlessness may cause you to be the next man to meet the fate of Hiram Hedges."

The appeal was not in vain and when the minister produced the resolutions, which were to crown the meeting, every man arose to his feet and signified his willingness to sign when the question was put.

The result of the meeting was most evident yesterday afternoon. The tide of public sentiment was completely changed.

So many were the requests of substantial farmers coming into the city yesterday afternoon to put their names to the resolutions that copies were placed in the stores and banks and every man was given an opportunity to take the stand in the open on the side of the officials trying to uphold the law.

The fiscal court, a good index of public sentiment, indorsed the resolutions.

The Jumping Off Place.

"Consumption had me in its grasp; and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr. King's New Discovery; and I want to say right now, it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle, and after taking one dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again," says George Moore, of Grimesland, N. C. As a remedy for coughs and colds and healer of weak, sore lungs and for preventing pneumonia New Discovery is supreme, 50c and $1.00 at all druggists. Trial bottle free.

"But maybe you don't like to hear the smart sayings of other people's children," said the man who had been reciting them off for an hour. "Yes, I do," responded the other man. "I think they ought to be imperishably preserved. I sell photographs—dollar down and a dollar semi-occasionally. How about one?" There was nothing to do but invest.—Washington Herald.

True
Clothes= Economy

Most every man has fixed, in his own mind, a price which he thinks is sufficient to buy a good suit of clothes, and it is right and proper that this should be so. But here's the rub: When you go into most clothing stores they want to boost your price $5 or $10 for the kind of suit your self-respect tells you that you ought to wear. Not so at Gullett's; here the prices are

and $25

Our values are identical with those offered by other stores in every way except the price—they show the same style, the same quality, but the price is fixed at a point which you will recognize at once as reasonable, fair.

Let your Easter suit be a KINGSTON. You'll like it; your friends will like it and, most of all, WE will like it. The new models are ready for you to slip on. Suppose we decide on tomorrow for a fitting.

How the Sentiment is Shown.

For once in the history of the state a direct primary last night on the presidential issue would have greatly simplified proceedings. As it is, the choice presented in the caucus between Secretary Taft and a presidential candidate yet to be selected for "the allies" was so involved by the individual rivalries and ambitions of delegates—influences of varying impact upon different localities—and so obscured by compromises and pre-convention agreements designed to avoid party disruption that the results call for some interpretations. And those are well worth making.

The Young's hotel headquarters apparently claim as their own victory the success of all candidates who desire to go to Chicago without instructions, even though avowedly for Taft, while the Ames building headquarters naturally rate the success of Taft men, whether secured after a contest or as the result of a harmonious pre-convention agreement, as their own victory. The two claims necessarily overlap.

And still, out of all the confusion and cross-purposes, the bald fact stands out as distinctly as a lighthouse on a headland that an overwhelming majority of the Republican voters of Massachusetts desire the nomination of William H. Taft for the presidency. No other candidate has displayed any affirmative strength. An occasional town delegate of the unpledged group announces his preference for Hughes, and an occasional Hughes speech has been made on the platform in the unpledged canvass. And yet it is disclosing no secret to say that the real anti-Taft leaders have no serious thought of nominating Hughes, nor will any of these preliminary efforts of such an occasional Hughes supporter really contribute anything toward swelling the Hughes current. The choice lies between William H. Taft and some person whose identity is not yet disclosed, upon whom the leaders of the anti-Taft cause commonly called the Allies, think they may yet unite, or at least have long thought that they might ultimately unite, and that is little likely to be Hughes. While anti-Taft leaders have not hesitated to accept the help of Hughes' supporters, the latter are hardly likely ever to have much reason to believe that their efforts in Hughes' behalf were effectively directed.

It is impossible to appraise the proportions of this Taft victory without making some allowance for the marvellous personal and political influence of Senator Crane, against whom the Taft movement has had to contend. His colleagues, Senator Lodge, although early committed to Taft, has been far less active in this preliminary canvass.

In Ward 11, where the junior senator's influence is exceptionally strong, and where a critical attitude toward President Roosevelt has been more freely expressed than almost anywhere else, the "favorable to Taft" delegates have made a decisive sweep. In the sixth congressional district, where the fight was the most cleanly contested of any in the state, with the unpledged cause ably and earnestly presented, the victory of Hoyt and Vittum, the Taft candidates, is so overwhelming as to leave no doubt as to where the people stand. In the third district, in spite of an unwise selection of a candidate by the Taft management, and of a hostile press, and a powerful organization in opposition, the unpledged cause has been successful by only a narrow margin.

Ex-Governor Long's opportunity in the present situation is peculiarly patent. Even his own town, hoping for his election as delegate at large, passes without serious dissent Taft resolutions. Many delegates elsewhere were chosen who intend to vote for him because of admiration for his conspicuous public services, but by caucuses which were clearly friendly to Taft, exhibited either by express commitment or in the choice of delegates. In these circumstances we should expect to see Governor Long, whose position has been judicially balanced, soon express himself as in favor of Taft's nomination. His last statement left the way open admirably for such a declaration now. No man can fail to realize more readily than he how odd it would look for three of the four delegates at large to be anti-Taft on the first roll-call, when a clear majority of the district delegates were voting on the other side, backed as the detailed tabulation will show, by an overwhelming majority of the Republican voters of this commonwealth. For anti-Taft minority in Republican caucuses to have three of the four delegates at large would be "minority representation" with a vengeance.

Much remains to be done in Massachusetts before the state and district conventions complete their work. It is somewhat premature to claim the success of "the unpledged" delegates, when the only bodies which "pledge" or advise delegates—"the conventions"—are yet to meet. It is entirely likely that many district conventions will make their positions clear, even if the state convention refrains altogether from giving any hint as to the preference of the people of Massachusetts.—Boston Transcript.
